

1. Work in groups. Discuss which activities people can do in the different seasons. Write them down in the appropriate field.

Group A: Use your first foreign language.

Group B: Use your second foreign language.

2. Form pairs consisting of one member of group A and one member of group B.

Compare the activities. Discuss the following questions:

a) Are there any differences between countries as to which activities are done in which season?

b) Which activities do you personally prefer in each of the seasons?

Use the first foreign language for question a) and the second foreign language for question b).

The activities have been developed for German-speaking learners whose first foreign language is English. The rubric would be in German.
